FREE Teach A-Level Physics with Confidence (Institute Of Physics)

Are you a recently qualified teacher at the beginning of your KS5 teaching career? Or perhaps you are a non-specialist looking to improve your subject knowledge to enable you to teach KS5? Or maybe you are an experienced A-level physics teacher looking for some new ideas for your KS5 lessons?

This FREE A-level Physics CPD day will give you an opportunity to try out a range of practical strategies and demos' which you can immediately take back to your classroom and share with your colleagues. In addition to the two practical sessions, the day includes a Maths for Physics session in which you will learn how Mechanics is treated in A-level maths compared with A-level Physics. This will give you the knowledge and experience to know when and how the maths, that students need to be successful physicists, is taught. The day will also be a great opportunity to network with other A-level Physics teachers in the region.

Planning for change

All participants have the opportunity to suggest topics for discussion.

The Hatton Teaching School Alliance Secondary Anti-bullying and E-safety Network is aimed at anyone involved in supporting students and enabling staff to deal with bullying effectively. This links with e-safety to provide a sound base of knowledge and understanding of the challenges faced with the use of technology both in, and out of the school environment. The sessions are hosted by John Barker, Lead Teacher at Sir Christopher Hatton Academy who successfully delivers the Stonewall Train the Trainer courses, gaining the Gold Award as a Stonewall school champion school. He has supported schools nationally in implementing policy change, anti-bullying and behaviour strategies and has recently been designated as a Specialist Leader of Education (SLE) for behaviour, with a focus on bullying.

The network aims to be a collaborative and supportive environment in order to improve the support and training given to all schools across the network. They are an opportunity to share best practice, to ask for support and advice on any area of bullying or e-safety and help to develop combined knowledge on effective strategies and best practice. The meetings take place in Hatton Teaching School Alliance's dedicated training centre starting at 4pm, with refreshments included.
